Legendary Ella Fitzgerald

Farewell To A Legend

By Anastacia

HOLLYWOOD -- When old friends get together to reminisce about the life of a good friend, the good luminates the moment, and you see your friend again. At the 18th Annual Playboy Jazz Festival held at the Hollywood Bowl, friends and admirers of the late Ella Fitzgerald, who died Saturday morning from complications of diabetes, offered special musical tributes to her memory and spoke of her influence in the history of jazz. "All the giants of jazz, Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Sarah Vaughn...are in the highest mountain", said Thelonious Monk Jr., prior to rendering the stunning Clifford Jordan tune, "Highest Mountain" to the eighteen thousand capacity jazz fans.

"Ella...", exclaimed Bill Cosby, the Master of Ceremonies for sixteen years of one of Los Angeles' most celebrated events. The attendees, acclaiming her greatness with applause and joyful tears, rose to their feet for the most enchanting songbirds of all times. The jazz aficionados, from the very old to the very young, paused to celebrate the life of the brilliant songstress amidst a beautiful Southern California weekend.

Ella Fitzgerald will long be remembered for her delicate and powerful vocal stylings. Her over six decade legacy of music will live forever, and her memory will keep the pathway through the journey of jazz ablaze for generations to follow. Farewell to a lady called Ella.

Black Voice Banned From Courthouse

No Montel, No Black Voice,
No Return of Ramdhan
Children

By Cheryl Brown

After a six year struggle, the court is no closer to returning Pat Gordy Ramdhan's children. When she went to Children's Dependency Court in Los Angeles this time she was thrown out for having the Black Voice Newspaper in the waiting area and for appearing on the Montel Williams Show.

According to Ramdhan, the Bailiff snatched the newspaper, tore them up, grabbed her arm, and put her out after telling her she couldn't return to court until December 12, 1996. Ramdhan who is legally blind and the niece of Motown founder Berry Gordy, removed copies of the Black Voice from her purse when asked for an item located in her purse. Permission to see a copy of the newspaper was granted by Ramdhan to someone in the waiting area. Soon others wanted a copy. Before long, most of the papers were gone and the bailiff took a copy of the paper back to Judge Garfinkle's chambers.

According to witnesses, the bailiff allegedly said, "This is a Black newspaper, what are you advocating." And, in front of everyone there he preceded to tear it up and throw it in the trash. Witnesses claim that copies of the L.A. Times were available in the waiting area.

Regarding the incident, Victoria Pipkin, Special Assistant, Public Department of Children and Family Services said, "The Black Voice is on our mailing list of major newspapers in southern California...we are familiar with the Black Voice."

"... I know each time they will find a reason to keep my children away from me," stated Ramdhan. She wants to know what has she done so terrible that she cannot get her children back. She hasn't had any charges of child abuse as allegedly did the relative who has her children.

Ramdhan, left her children with a sister she raised for a short time, six years ago and when she returned for the children, she was told there was a ly married. Now with a child of her own, she wrote to the judge, I lived with my mother several years and she has helped make me a responsible adult.

In my previous arrangement with my aunt I was not receiving any guidance what-so-ever. I believe they (siblings) would do a lot better if they were not there, (with Sherry).

Ramdhan's oldest son, Quincy, 18, recently was reunited with his mother and he is saddened by the years he lost.

"I am anguished, in pain and suffering over the loss of my children. What have I done so bad that I can't see my children. When I go to court I have to be prepared that I may have to go to jail," said Ramdhan, who has already faced false accusations connected with the case.

"I will not give up the fight

President Clinton's visit comes four days after his June 8th radio address, where he announced four new steps that his Administration will take to stop church burnings including supporting bipartisan legislation that would make it easier to prosecute those who attack houses of worship.

Black Press of America to Meet in Houston for Annual Confab

When the Black Press of America gathers for the National Newspaper Publishers Association's 1996 Annual Convention this week in Houston, TX, it will be celebrating a legacy of service to America that is more than 169 years old.

As Black America prepares to face the challenges of the 21st century, members, guests and sponsors participating in the conference, will focus on ways of achieving unity and coalition building through the them "The Black Press: Changing America by Building Bridges."

Highlights of events include: A gathering with some of the most prominent African Americans of our times, entitled the "Building Bridges Leadership Roundtable;" workshops on the Information Superhighway and on the political situation in Africa -- particularly in the west African country of Nigeria -- and a myriad of informative and inspiring breakfast, lunch and dinner events featuring some of the top media professionals, government and business officials in the country.

A dinner to salute black-oriented publishers in America's fourth largest city will be held. Rep. Sheila Jackson-Lee, who represents the majority of Houston's black areas will assist in honoring the Houston Defender, Houston Forward Times, Houston Sun, Houston. In addition, the convention will feature the annual Merit Awards dinner, an opportunity to formally recognize the work of African-American newspapers. The awards honor members in 19 categories for excellence in producing their publications. The A. Philip Randolph Messenger Awards, sponsored by Miller Brewing Company and also awarded each year during the convention, rewards NNPA members for their accomplishments in the field of advocacy reporting and overall journalism. The Messenger Awards' keynote speaker will be Thomas N. Todd.

"The Black Press is the second only to the black church in longevity and service to the Black community," states Hardy Brown, a African Methodist Episcopal Trustee in San Bernardino and NNPA convention chairman. "We will host a prayer breakfast featuring Kirbyjon Caldwell, a nationally known minister who used to be an investment banker," says Brown. "Who best to help us form spiritual, economic and media alliances than someone like Reverend Caldwell," he said.

The mission of the "Building Bridges" theme is to thrust the Black Press into the forefront of bringing collections of African-American groups together for improvements in each phase of the lives of blacks. Numerous ministers, including former District of Columbia Delegate to Congress Walter Fauntroy are scheduled to attend.

Congressman George Brown Supports Church Arson Prevention Act

WASHINGTON -- Congressman George E. Brown, Jr. (D-San Bernardino) voted for H.R. 3525, the "Church Arson Prevention Act of 1996." The legislation was passed by the House of Representatives by a unanimous vote.

"Congress must take a firm stand against those who are destroying our houses of worship," said Congressman Brown. "I am convinced that the majority of these fires are motivated by nothing more than racism and hatred.

H.R. 3525 bill deletes the monetary requirement for a minimum of $10,000 in damages before prosecution can occur. This change in the law will make it easier to prosecute any individuals involved in criminal activity.

court order giving custody to her sister, Sherry Wright.

Wright reportedly told the court Ramdhan abandoned the children. However, Ramdhan lived at the same address for many years and was never served any court documents.

When Ramdhan asked why the Times was allowed in the waiting area, she was told "we sell the L.A. Times, we don't sell this Black paper."

According to a well-known attorney, judges in child dependency court can do what they want to do. For a case to be taken off calendar it seems someone "ticked off" the judge. In these cases, the judge has the power. He determines if it is in the best interest of the children.

"But I couldn't even go back in the building to see my attorney, they just put me out," said Ramdhan.

A county council representative said "you are doing too much." and she cited Ramdhan's segment on the Montel Williams Show.

The tearing up of the newspaper and the Montel Williams show were only smoke screens for this mother who has missed the love of her children and watching them grow up. Nurturing them as well as just being there mother.

In September her three children will turn 11, 13, and 14. "They have been brain washed against me and I haven't been allowed to see them."

With the help of the system, Ramdhan has lost those years that can never be returned and now court papers say the children have bonded with the sister and they have a stable life.

Stormy Ramdhan, 19, who was also allegedly kidnapped by her aunt, was set free by the judge when she was 16. She has lived with her mother since that time and before she was recently married. Now with a child of her own, she wrote to the judge, I lived with my mother several years and she has helped make me a responsible adult.

Peter Degree, head of the L.A. DPCS said on television recently his priority is the reunification of families, but when I called to talk to him, they wrote in the report - harrassment.

Son Alphy has begged to be returned to his mother. He has written letters to President Clinton, Governor Pete Wilson, and recently even O.J. Simpson, begging for help. He even ran away.

It is interesting to note, stories have appeared in the Press Enterprise, the Black Voice, the Globe tabloid, and the L.A. Sentinel. Ramdhan has appeared on the Sally Jesse Raphael Show, the Marilyn Kagan Show, and the Montel Williams Show. Her house was set on fire, she was beaten up and landed in the hospital with a broken arm and received repeated phone calls warning her to leave the situation alone.

The court only cited in documents that she shouldn't have appeared on Montel Williams Show, but never tore up another newspaper except the Black Voice News.

When she followed the judges orders to get counseling and tested for drugs, she passed with flying colors. And the psychological reports state her depression stems from the loss of her children. Now court records cite she harrasses DPCS and that she appeared on the Montel Williams Show. How long will this continue?

In November 2, 1994, she received a letter assuring her visitation rights but to date there has been contact only briefly by phone.

Larry Smith...Did The Right Thing

Larry Smith, Sheriff of Riverside County faced hostile reaction from the listeners of KFI radio station and readers of the Press Enterprise for his dismissal and subsequent firing of out of control officers who were caught on television beating Mexican Nationals after a one hour chase. Smith should be commended for standing up for what is right.

Callers to the radio station made disparaging remarks about Smith and brought out feelings of deep animosity.

A respondent to the Press Enterprise's "Through the Prism" series G.K.S. of the "Sundowner" City of San Jacinto said she was amazed that ethnic groups are blind to the Tawana Brawley's, Willie Horton's, Rodney King's, Damian William's, "they are bad people involved in horrible behavior."

The writer compared them to Ted Bundy, Jeffrey Dahmer, and Timothy McVeigh...then said, "do I think the beating was deserved? Yes, Yes, Yes...each of the bums should have been publicly whipped and thrown back across the borders."

This is an example of what Smith had to endure in light of the tide turning fueled by the down turn in the economy, Proposition 187, and the issue of Affirmative Action to mention a few, who feel its alright to beat Mexicans who come across the border without permission.

Director Debbie Allen recently said at the graduation of the UCLA School of Theater, Film, and Television "didn't California use to belong to Mexico?" The out of control officers should have known better than treat people as they did.

It was reminiscent of the Rodney King beating. People, especially G.K.S., still blame him for the beating. Police officers are sworn to uphold the law, not break it. Officers should always act as though there is a camera on them. The actions of these officers (and those of the King beating) are why many in the Black community don't trust the police.

Larry Smith stood up to the plate and knocked a home run. We are grateful for him doing the morally right thing.

We hope every police agency will change the climate of the force, hire and promote more Blacks, Latinos, Asians, and Native American, and give them proper training. Then people will not compare Brawley, Rodney King, Willie Horton or even Damian Williams to serial killers, cannibals, and racists.

We know Larry Smith can sleep at night because he did the right thing.

Ghanaian Ambassador Outlines Africa's Priorities

WASHINGTON -- Ekwow Spio-Garbrah, Ambassador of Ghana to the United States, has called on the United States to maintain needed assistance in support of African development in a 12-point proposal that emphasizes private sector joint ventures, value added exporting, debt alleviation and regional integration.

Addressing a seminar on May 24 sponsored by the Congressional Research Service to discuss the Clinton administration's Trade and Development Policy Report for Africa, Ambassador Spio-Garbrah said the report presented innovative and worthy initiatives to further Africa's development process.

He pointed out, however, that it failed to address a number of fundamental issues that African nations feel would level the playing field for African in international trade and boost Africa's exports.

Ambassador Spio-Garbrah outlined a plan to improve the impact of U.S. assistance to Africa, focusing on African countries with a greater level of economic development. He emphasized that while traditional humanitarian and reconstruction aid should continue to be provided to strife-torn countries that need basic necessities, foreign-assistance funding should be directed toward the more economically advanced countries of the region, creating seed capital and leverage in financial markets to fund public and private sector joint ventures. he felt that U.S. foreign aid should be tailored toward enhancing African capabilities and should include incentives to encourage U.S. companies to set up operations in Africa.

The Ghanaian envoy called for the establishment of initiatives to promote technology transfer as well as encourage African professionals resident in the United States to offer their services to their home countries.

Wondering if intellectual property rights should not be paid to African countries for the loss of their professionals who work in advanced economies, Ambassador Spio-Garbrah urged the Clinton administration to seek ways of helping African governments to effectively mobilize and harness these human resources for the development of their home countries, including the greater use of Africans in international

Republican-Controlled Assembly Kills Small Business Tax

The Republican-controlled State Assembly last week killed two bills which would have eliminated some of the tax burden for small business. The move came as a surprise — Republicans unanimously supported the measures in the Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The legislation, authored by Marguerite Archie-Hudson (D-

Los Angeles), is part of the small business relief package formulated by Assembly Democrats to help get the state's small businesses back on their feet. The measures essentially failed last week when Republicans wouldn't provide the votes necessary to take the measures off of the Appropriations suspense file.

"I think it's curious that these bills were applauded in the Revenue and Taxation Committee -- one passed the committee on consent with no opposition and two Republicans joined the other as joint authors. Now they're being killed. It looks like there is some political game-playing going on here," said Marguerite Archie-Hudson.

Taken together, the bills would have provided significant relief during the crucial start-up period of a small business. AB 3380 would have eliminated the personal property tax on the first $100,000 of personal property owned by small businesses. Currently, the tax costs small business 1% of the value of personal property owned by the business. AB 3401 sought to revoke the minimum state income tax on small business -- set at 7% of income.

Positively Black -- The Real Secret to Beauty

Ever get a case of the uglies? The uglies are those thoughts and mental images that produce the foul moods, the negative and unkind attitudes that lead to pouting, brooding, and negative emotional outbursts. The target of the barrage could be your husband, wife, your children, significant other or even a complete stranger. While we are all capable of distorting our features and making our faces quite grotesque at times with our frowns and contortions, the uglies really have nothing to do with our outer countenance. It is the condition of our minds and emotions that create the uglies. There is an old saying, "beauty is as beauty does." This is true. It is also true that ugly is as ugly does! Both beauty and ugliness proceed from the inside out. What we see at any time are merely the effects of internal causes. You are angry not because of what has happened to you, but because of how you have chosen to respond to what has happened. You are in a foul mood not because it is raining, you left your car keys in the car and you are late for work. You are angry because you have chosen to respond angrily. Anger is only one of several cognitive and emotional options you can choose.

When we learn to govern our thoughts and emotions, we need not react negatively to life's situations. There is no reason why we should experience prolonged episodes of the uglies. This is not to say that we will enjoy everything that happens in our lives; obviously this is unrealistic. But if we determine to respond to life's ups and downs in a serene and optimistic fashion, our blood pressure will not shoot sky high nor will we be subject to a host of other emotionally induced ailments.

It is not easy to remain calm in the face of adversity, especially when the prevailing behavior pattern is to succumb to fear, rage or violence. That is why a re-learning, re-training and a re-socialization is in order. We have to learn how to relax, remain calm and clear headed. In this culture's up tempo, pressure packed lifestyle, we have to learn to relax and let go of tension and anxiety.

Practice relaxation. Relax your mind and body. Think peaceful thoughts. Our thinking triggers mental images which, in turn produces emotional and physiological responses within our bodies. Our body language mirrors our mental and emotional state. Our speech and behavior are the expressions of our thoughts and attitudes.

I am not suggesting we suppress negative emotions because this can be just as harmful. Holding in intense emotions over long periods of time can also lead to physical problems. The emotional energy has to go somewhere. The build-up becomes like a pressure cooker without a release valve! The stress and strain eventually takes a toll on the internal organs. Doctors' offices are full of people being treated for stress-related symptoms and emotionally induced illnesses.

I advocate minimizing negative feelings by controlling your thought processes and emotional responses to life's situations. Controlling our thoughts enables us to control our speech, our feelings and our behavior. Unfortunately, self-control is not a virtue in this society. Impulsiveness, emotional immaturity and irresponsibility are the norm. Look at all the emotionally out-of-control characters that are portrayed and glamorized in the media! This sends the message that it's okay to be a brute, rude, obnoxious, vulgar and disrespectful. The media sanctions being out of control because advertising campaigns are geared to subliminally induce consumption and impulse buying.

You don't have to lash out at people to show your displeasure at something they have done.

You don't have to walk around with a constant scowl on your face. There are other ways to resolve conflicts other than violent, angry outbursts. Your body language doesn't have to indicate a case of a bad attitude 24/7. Relax, smile and enjoy life. You can't control every aspect of your life, but you can control your mind and your emotions. Self-control begins with the control of your mind. Everything proceed from your thinking. Learn to control your mind and you are that much more in control of your life.

Avoid the uglies. Beauty is as beauty thinks, speaks and acts. Be beautiful.

Boxer Assists Black Churches Hit by Arson

WASHINGTON -- U.S. Senator Barbara Boxer (D-CA) has joined Senator Carol Moseley-Braun (D-IL) in sponsoring a resolution condemning the recent arson attacks on African-American Churches throughout the south.

"Every one of us has to make his or her voice heard in opposition to this wave of terror," Boxer said. "These churches have been sources of stability, kindness, moral and spiritual guidance for their congregations. These fires are a chilling reminder of a period that we all thought had passed. A period marked by some of the most shameful, hateful acts ever perpetrated by Americans against Americans. A period in which bombings, fires, beatings and shootings were tools to prevent African-Americans from realizing equal status in our society."

Boxer praised President Clinton for his leadership in mobilizing federal investigators and offering solace to the people whose churches have been burned. "It is the business of the President to offer moral leadership, to console the victims of racists attacks, and to call the cowards out for what they have done," Boxer said. "He has been a source of strength"

"I also praise Ross Perot for his leadership in calling on his Reform Part members to guard the churches," Boxer said.

Finally, Boxer gave credit to Senator Moseley-Braun for offering a resolution, which Boxer is cosponsoring, condemning the church fires and urging the Administration to mobilize all appropriate resources to put the people who set these fires behind bars.

"This is a problem not just for African-Americans, but for all Americans," Boxer said. "We should speak with one voice and pass the Moseley-Braun resolution unanimously, so that our message is clear."

Presiding Elder Tyler Speaks on the Gift of the Holy Spirit

Presiding Elder Carolyn Tyler came to Riverside recently to speak at Allen Chapel A.M.E. Church. The event was the celebration a Women's Day. Tyler spoke from Romans 6:23, her subject was the Gift of God. Some gifts are trinkets, some are growing plants, some are puppies/kittens, but the Holy Spirit is a Gift from God that keeps on giving," she said.

God bestows a living gift to those who have accepted Jesus Christ. One of the good things about the Holy Spirit is he understands, if we moan and don't say a word he understands. He is an intercessor. She admonished us not to refer to the Holy Spirit as an "it".

She said every once in a while when we want to share Jesus and don't quite know how, the Holy Spirit comes to mind and shows you what to say.

She admonished us not to grieve the Holy Spirit by improper conduct - some who say they are believers-live anyway - do what you want. "The Gift of God is not allowing you to know you are grieving the Holy Spirit.

Sometimes we can't get our message to God. To this Tyler says, "we must confess and ask for forgiveness. When the Holy Spirit is working in your life, then you live like Jesus."

Tyler is pegged to be the first female Bishop in the AME Church.

County Workers Approve Contract

SAN BERNARDINO - San Bernardino County employees have overwhelmingly approved a new contract, according to Chris Prato, General Manager of the San Bernardino Public Employees Association, which represents about 10,000 county workers.

Union members in the seven bargaining units represented by the Employees Association approved the tentative agreement by margins ranging from 85% to 95%. Overall, 89.6% of those casting ballots voted to approve the agreements. The pact now goes to the County Board of Supervisors, which is expected to approve the agreements on June 25.

Employees voted on a tentative agreement reached after nearly 14 months of bargaining punctuated by employee demonstrations and letter-writing campaigns. The major sticking points in the negotiations that started in March of 1995 were furloughs of employees and county proposals for contract concessions. negotiations included mediation and arbitration, which resulted in a contract breakthrough last month.

The new agreement runs through December of 1998 and includes three days of furlough time. after which furloughs will be the subject of negotiations, a 2.5% salary increase in July of 1997, additional increases for employees who have longer service with the County, increases in the county's contribution for employee's medical and dental cost.

Universal Lifeline Telephone Service Gives You The Power To Be Connected!

I'm a guy with a lot of friends. Some are unemployed, some are in the military, some are disabled—like me. And all of us have to budget our money. Sometimes you have to cut out some of the things you're used to having; but, some things are too important to go without—like having a telephone. That's why we were happy to find out about the Universal Lifeline Telephone Service. ULTS from GTE! Our Child Continues
To Have Problems In School

QUESTION: Dear Pastor Woods, Our son continues to have problems in school. Academically he is not doing all that good and he gets into trouble once in a while for talking too much. We told him that we want him to do good but have not seen much progress. What are parents to do to help their children?

T.M., Rialto, CA
ANSWER: First, you are going to have to pray and ask the Lord what you can do differently. The Bible says in Proverbs 3:5,6 "Trust in the Lord, and do not lean to your own understanding. In all your ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct your path." God can help you become a better parent!

Secondly, you are going to have to spend more time at home with your children and carefully observe their character development. Also, watch how they play with their friends. You will learn a lot! Begin to focus on key areas that need to be re-tified and developed in your child. Let them know that you are aware of their weaknesses and that you plan to work to help them grow. Set specific goals, then tenaciously attain those goals.

Every person loves accomplishment. Have you every noticed how your children run home with their projects they do at school or church? Well, tap into that desire to achieve. Show them that accomplishments are more fulfilling than failures. Reward your children. Also, let them know that certain traits are not acceptable, period. Demand excellence and do not be lenient.

Show them that accomplishments are more fulfilling than failures. Reward your children. Also, let them know that certain traits are not acceptable, period. Demand excellence and do not be lenient. It will pay off for you, and most importantly it will pay off for your child. Help them develop to be a productive member in society and useful in the Body of Christ. You can be and should be victorious in your parenting!

Investigation Tightens on Church Burnings

Continuing its comprehensive response to the epidemic of racist attacks on Black churches, the National Council of Churches (NCC) brought pastors from many (20-30) of the burned churches to Washington, D.C., June 9-10 to meet with each other and with top government officials, including leaders of the Justice and Treasury departments.

An NCC-led team has been investigating the burnings, firebombings and other attacks since late last year and visiting affected communities since early March. The team, which includes the Center for Democratic Renewal, Atlanta, and the Center for Constitutional Rights, New York, also is providing spiritual, legal and material support to stop the attacks and rebuild the churches.

"These are human-made, unnatural disasters," says the Rev. Dr. Mac Charles Jones, NCC Associate for Racial Justice and Pastor of St. Stephen's Baptist Church in Kansas City, Mo. "These are not isolated incidents but rather domestic terrorism and intimidation of whole communities."

As of May 20, the Center for Democratic Renewal had documented 53 churches burned and four vandalized since January 1990, with 23 of the 53 burned since January 1996. The Center has found a "strong connection between church attacks and white supremacist groups."

Since early March, NCC-led teams have visited many of the burned churches across the South, including in Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina, Arkansas, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana. On all visits, the team goes to the sites of churches that have been destroyed or damaged to gather first-hand testimony from pastors, deacons, and other members of these churches.

In written testimony submitted to the May 21 House Judiciary Committee hearing on the attacks on churches, National Council of Churches President Melvin G. Talbert and General Secretary Joan Brown Campbell said the NCC-led team had uncovered "striking similarities in these incidents, parallels that constitute a pattern of abuses."

These similarities include "the use of molotov cocktails and other incendiary devices, the spray painting of racist graffiti, the targeting of churches with a history of strong advocacy for African American rights, and racist notes and letter left in the mailboxes of pastors. Many churches were attacked on or around January 15, Martin Luther King Jr. Day (five of those in 1996 and five in 1995)."

The 30 persons so far arrested and/or convicted for these crimes "all are white males between the ages of 15 and 45, with several of them admitting to be members of such racist groups as the Aryan Faction, Skinheads for White Justice and the Ku Klux Klan," the testimony continues.

President Clinton called the 18-month wave of attacks against black churches "depraved" in his weekly radio address.

Black church leaders have said they are satisfied with meetings they have had with Clinton administration officials about the recent rash of Southern Black church burnings. The 38 ministers met with U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno and Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin. Many of the Black Pastors have complained that investigators are treating the churches' congregations more like suspects than victims. The Rev. Mac Charles Jones, head of the National Council of Churches, the group calling attention to the atrocities said on CNN: "The sense of dissatisfaction (among pastors) is not around the amount of the investigation, but the sense of intimidation they feel from investigators. By presstime, at least nine had been arrested or detained in connection with the fires. Two of those arrested were "known members of the Ku Klux Klan," said President Clinton. The week before the meeting with Reno and the subsequent news conference, a church sanctuary caught a fire in Charlotte, N.C. A church in Greensboro, Ala. was burned to the ground in what authorities said was arson. At presstime an investigation was underway in Texas concerning a church that caught fire. Officials from the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms recently said it had investigated more than 25 arson attacks against southern Black churches since January of 1995.

"Every family has a right to expect that when they walk to a church or synagogue or mosque they will find a house of worship, not the charred remnants of a hateful act done by cowards in the night," said Clinton in the radio address. After the radio address ended, Clinton told reporters he had memories of church burnings as a child growing up in Arkansas.

Our Bodies

Late Life Love

Dear Dr. Levister: We recently celebrated our 50th anniversary. Our children have suggested that our long time attitude to have healthy sexual activity is abnormal. Is this behavior inappropriate? Making Whoopee.

Dear Making Whoopee: First, tell your children you love them and appreciate their concern. However, when it comes to marital sex at any age, it is not only your personal business but sex behavior is healthy and should be encouraged.

One of society's overwhelming myths "that older people should not be - ought not be - sexual" is a lot of bunk. The idea that older people are asexual persists in part because so little is known about erotic activity late in life.

"The assumption has been made that there's not much going on, so nobody has bothered to study it carefully," says Marcia Ory, Chief of Research at the National Institute on Aging (NIA).

Alfred Kinsey's classic report on male sexuality, more than 800 pages long, devoted only 14 pages to sex and aging. In the 44 years since, despite only a handful of studies, there is mounting evidence that many older people are not celibate. A 1995 study of 3,622 adults over 60 found that 81% of women were active in their 60's and 65% at age 70 and older. Among men 91% were still having sex in their 60's and 79% after age 69. Ninety percent of the participants rated their health good or excellent.

The wild card is health. Across the board people in poor health or whose partner has died are most likely to become celibate.

Healthy sex is a good barometer regardless of one's preferences. Normal aging brings physical changes that alter sexual response. As men grow older, they produce less testosterone which lowers sexual desire. The ability to have and maintain an erection decreases. In women the vagina lubricates more slowly and may take longer to achieve physical excitement. This can be remedied by attention to longer foreplay (kissing and hugging) and lubricants.

Don't be embarrassed about attending lectures or joining groups where such topics are openly discussed. Researchers agree that premature ends to sexual relationships could be avoided if couples knew more about sexual aging and are willing to be flexible. Don't be frightened by the naysayers. Protect your good health and laugh all the way to the bedroom!

Black Caucus Greets WCBPA During Capitol Visit

Sacramento - Members of the California Legislative Black Caucus (LBC), chaired by Assemblyman Willard H. Murray, Jr. (D-Paramount), met recently with the West Coast Black Publishers Association (WCBPA) during the group's annual Legislative Day in the State Capitol. The WCBPA was formed in 1971 and is comprised of news organizations in California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Arizona.

Chairman Murray thanked WCBPA president A. Brian Townsend of San Bernardino and the publishers accompanying him for the tremendous support the Caucus has received from the Black Press, adding that the meeting provided an opportunity to strengthen long-standing ties and to discuss mutual issues of concern.

"The Black Caucus has traditionally relied on the Black Press to convey important legislative news and events to our communities. That support is even more critical now as the faces in the Caucus change and we prepare ourselves and African Americans throughout the state for the challenges of this year and through the year 2000," Murray told the group. Those issues included the Assembly's new Republican leadership, attacks on affirmative action, and the representation of Black legislators in the press in general.

"We are working hard on your behalf," stated Sen. Diane Watson. Senator Watson informed those present of the program SLAAP (South Los Angeles Affirmative Action Project). The project is to mobilize the community and organize task forces to encourage the communities to go to the polls and vote against CCRI. "CCRI will block the opportunity for our children to get into the UC and CSU system or even the community colleges, which will be next," cited Senator Watson.

SLAAP is a program that can be used statewide and nationally, stated the senator.

In view of the changing makeup of the Assembly in which the presence of African Americans is declining, Senator Watson urged support from the Black Press.

"We're in real trouble," she stated. "We need help from the Black Press in terms of our agenda. We beseech you to help support us," she added.

Other issues brought to the table during the gathering included the unofficial legislative rating system of the California Journal which, according to the Black Caucus, has consistently come back with low evaluations for African American legislators; the need for the Black Press to strengthen their relationship with the Latino Caucus; continued lack of advertising support for the Black Press from state agencies, and the recent conflict regarding Senator Don Rogers, who declared himself a non-resident alien of the U.S. in order to avoid taxes.

Following the Capitol meeting, WCBPA hosted a luncheon at Jazzman's Art of Pasta in historic Old Sacramento to recognize the achievements of the WCBPA and the Black Caucus. Also invited were corporate sponsors and local civic and business leaders who play pivotal roles in Sacramento's African American community.

The WCBPA has a combined circulation of over 400,000 with a weekly readership of more than 1.3 million.

A Celebration of African-American Olympians Past, Present & Future

HISTORIC COMMEMORATIVE: A Centennial Celebration of African-American Olympians produced by Minorities in Business magazine will take a long look at a proud history of Olympians.

A celebration of African-American Olympians Past, Present & Future (1896 to 1996)

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES - What is an Olympian and what makes the athlete or experience so special?

Greek mythology notes an Olympian is one of the twelve major Gods who lived on the slopes of Mount Olympus. They were considered exalted, celestial, godlike and majestic.

The Olympic games are an international festival consisting of athletics, poetry in motion and music.

Celebrating the Centennial or one-hundred years of the modern Olympic games in Atlanta starting in July, the event has brought the old Greek mythology to life. The games are bigger than life. Where else in this crazy world can you get 197 nations to come together in celebration of life and sport. Is there any other medium that can bring all these warring factions together?

In celebrating the American spirit, Minorities in Business magazine will acknowledge African-Americans whose political and business leadership brought the recent Olympic games to Los Angeles in 1984 and to Atlanta this year.

MIB has produced a special commemorative magazine entitled A Centennial Celebration of African-American Olympians 1896-1996. The production will salute the extraordinary talents of men and women like Muhammed Ali, Carl Lewis, Wyomia Tyus, Jackie Joyner-Kersey, Jesse Owens, Zina Garrison and many more.

I'm proud to acknowledge I contributed four interviews (George Foreman, Carl Lewis, Sugar Ray Leonard and Tommie Smith) to this one of a kind publication that will profile African-American gold medalist (1896 to 1996), as well as this year's hottest prospects. Also, this special sports edition will include a pull out guide in the center-spread that honors all of the African-American gold medalist.

On June 25, 1996, MIB will host a Centennial Celebration of African-American Athletes at a kick-off reception at the Mountain Gate Country Club in Bel Air from 7:00 to 11:00. Many past and present Olympians will be in attendance, as well as noted celebrities and sports figures.

BCA Concludes Successful Annual Meeting

Minister Farrakhan, early college exits and agents on campus are key topics of discussion.

Nearly 600 delegates attended the 1996 Black Coaches Associations (BCA) annual meeting in late May at the Marriott World Center in Orlando, Florida, marking the group's history.

"The yearly increases in attendance clearly indicate that our mission is taking hold among African-American coaches at every level," said Rudy Washington, the group's co-founder and executive director.

Saturday's general session featured Minister Louis Farrakhan. Addressing the gathering, Farrakhan called upon the coaches to rededicate themselves to serve as strong role models for their athletes. Drawing on his personal experiences as a young man, he said that no profession is greater than that of being teacher or coach.

"The purpose of education is the cultivation of all aspects of a person's potential," Farrakhan said. "Never subordinate an athlete's intellectual and moral side. We need our youth to understand the economic power they possess and learn how to use it properly so that their lives and the lives of their families are enriched."

Following the session, the BCA announced its three "Coaches of the Year" at the closing banquet. Tyrone Willingham, head football coach at Stanford, was voted Football Coach of the Year. Marian Washington, head women's basketball coach at the University of Kansas and assistant coach of the Women's basketball team, was chosen as Women's Basketball Coach of the Year, and John Thompson, head men's basketball coach at Georgetown University, received the men's honor.

During Friday's business sessions, delegates participated in a variety of skill-enhancement sessions in basketball, football, the Olympic sports and sports administration. Daniel Boggan Jr., chief operating officer of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, spoke on how the restructuring of the NCAA will impact minority interests. BCA president Dale Clayton, head men's basketball coach at Carson-Newman College, and vice president Alex Wood, head football coach at James Madison University, called on their colleagues to become more involved with their institution's presidents in voicing their concerns on key issues before the NCAA.

In a very spirited session, Bruce Stern, founder of the National Rookie League, and Bob Dandridge of the NBA Players Association, addressed the issues surrounding the growing trend of high school seniors and college underclassmen who are forgoing their college education and declaring their intent to play in the NBA.

Seton Hall assistant basketball coach Kenny Williams said that while athletes and league owners may relish the development of these leagues, "someone better be just as enthused about providing an education to these kids."

Following that discussion, Bill Strickland, president of the basketball division at IMG, and Richard Nichols, an attorney at Sideman & Bancroft, spoke to the growing problem of agents and their presence on the college campus. The session raised a series of points including state regulation of agents and the increased role that non-scholastic based coaches play in the recruitment process.

The BCA was founded in 1987 and is comprised of more than 3,000 members within the coaching, sports administration and corporate environments. The organization is involved in the issues of student-athlete education, gender equity and bias-free employment opportunity. The 1997 meeting will be May 23-24 at the Doral Golf Resort in Miami, Florida.

Chicago closes out record breaking NBA season with championship win over Seattle

ONE OF THE BEST: Seattle's Shawn Kemp played great during the playoffs, proving he should have made the Olympic team.

Jordan overcome with emotion after winning the title on Father's Day.

COMMENTARY

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

SAN BERNARDINO - Now that the celebrating is winding down in the City by Lake Michigan, questions . . . questions . . . questions abound everywhere.

The Chicago Bulls finished the regular season with the most victories in NBA history (72), and culminated its historic accomplishment by dusting off the pesky and tough Seattle SuperSonics 4-2, with a emotional game six 87-75 win at the United Center in Chicago. It was the Bulls fourth NBA title in six years.

The win earned Chicago, at the minimum, mention and debating status as one of the greatest NBA teams ever. Can they do it again next year? Michael Jordan was quoted as saying "now it's time for five (rings)."

Well, this Bulls' team just might not look the same next year if the management doesn't get busy and re-sign their players.

Season and Finals MVP, and, arguably the greatest player ever, Jordan is a free agent and is said to be looking for something in the $20 million range. Dennis Rodman, who played a superb Finals series, is a free agent seeking a two-year deal at $8 million. The man who kept the Bulls focused and made all the right moves, plus he's guided the team through all four of its titles, head coach Phil Jackson is asking for a two-year contract at $2.5 to $3 million.

For team owner Jerry Reinsdorf and vice president of basketball operations Jerry Krause it's a no brainer. Jordan and Jackson is a must, maybe Rodman can go if they bring back Horace Grant. Questions . . . questions . . . questions.

Jordan's public display of love for his father, James, who was murdered in 1993, displayed a real human and caring side to this very private superstar. Weeping and clutching the game ball as he laid on the floor while everyone celebrated was a moving moment for me as well.

MVP: Michael Jordan won the regular season, All-Star game and Finals MVP awards all in the same season.

Hinds' Blackballin' Set to Play this Weekend

The playwright, Rickerby Hinds, shown here with Debbie Allen, commencement speaker at UCLA School of Theatre, Film & Television graduation.

LOS ANGELES -- The Common Ground Festival sponsored by the Audrey Skirball-Kenis Theatre at UCLA's Macgowen Hall has begun, and those in the theatre community are talking about how they can expose a new audience to the theatre. The festival will culminate with performances of two plays this weekend June 20-23 at the Little Theatre, UCLA.

Among the performances will be Blackballin', a play written by Rickerby Hinds, and the 1995 Skirball-Kenis playwrighting award winner. The reading of the play, part of the Fall Reading Series took place in September 1995. This will be a workshop production.

Hinds, a 1996 graduate in the UCLA, Masters of Fine Arts program in playwriting is one of the brightest most exciting writers coming on the scene today. The play was chosen because Audrey Skirball-Kenis Theatre sees it has a future beyond the original reading.

The September reading series also included a play by well known playwright, Paula Vogel, Chair of the Theatre Department at Brown University. "To be included with someone of her stature was indeed an honor," said Hinds.

According to Paulette Brown, Nu Voices Magazine Editor, during the community caucus which opened the Common Ground Festival this week, suggestions were made about exposing non-traditional theatre goers to the medium. The problem that exists is the patrons tend to be 45-60 years of age and younger people are not attending.

"There are a couple of reasons for this, the material isn't relevant to the group because of age or culture or that they have never been exposed to the theatre," said Brown.

"They may attend once and not want to return because it is not relevant," Hinds added. However, he plans to change that. "It is my goal to bring theatre to Riverside to a new generation and culture. I feel with the right material we will have an active theatre community. People will support theatre especially when it is relevant to them," he continued.

For many, the theater conjures images of high-brow, stuffy literary types relishing in dramatic plays which possess a "classic", Shakespearian quality. But playwright Rickerby Hinds, has plans of broadening this image.

The first African-American to receive the Skirball-Kenis honor in the award's five-year history, Hinds wants to bring theater to "the hood" with what he refers to as his "hip-hop style language."

"Although I admire Shakespeare, Shakespeare is not a way to get young Blacks to plays," explains the 30-year-old playwright in his signature, matter-of-fact manner.

Hinds succinctly summarizes "Blackballin'" as "a look at racism in America using sports as a metaphor."

A self-admitted sports buff, Hinds' tendency to intellectualize sports served as motivation behind his work, "I've always looked at sports sideways. I've always wondered why there are so few Black coaches in sports fields that are often filled with Black athletes."

Hinds was also drawn to sports because of its overall entertainment value. "I wanted to write a piece that dealt with racism but did not say simply, 'racism is bad, don't do it.' I wanted it to be so interesting that people wouldn't even realize that they were getting a message."

And interesting it is. The ASK Theater exalts Blackballin' as a "highly theatricalized presentation of four young athletes and a slave-driving coach who does a 100-yard dash through the history of African-Americans in sports."

Yet underneath its seemingly light and entertaining quality, Blackballin' unveils powerfully controversial messages, including the exploitation of athletes, the state of racial relations in the U.S., and the dichotomy of Black athletes as American heroes and second-class citizens respectively.

Through the voices of its four primary characters, Down, Hoop, Stick, and Jab, the play explores the racial struggles of each athlete within his particular sports field. There is Down, the Black football player who covets the quarterback position, a title often held by the sport's White players. And there's Hoop, a basketball player so impressed by the jerseys and sneakers he receives each time he makes a hoop that he overlooks his White coach's more lucrative monetary benefits. Stick is a baseball player who arrives at the plate with one strike already against him. Finally, there's Jab, a boxer paired in a match against an invincible White boxer, none other than the movie-screen's character, Rocky.

Adding to the poignancy of his message, Hinds intertwines historical events of racial discrimination within sports which parallel those of his fictional characters' struggles - the racially-charged hate mail Hank Aaron received as he neared breaking the major league home run record of all-American hero, Babe Ruth. The race riots which followed Jack Johnson's ascent to his title as the first Black heavyweight champion. The irony of Muhammad Ali being refused service at a "Whites Only" restaurant even as he wore the gold medal he had won during the Olympics.

Unlike many writers who claim to write solely for creative expression, Hinds freely admits that there is a definite social agenda behind his work.

Ronnie Laws' Album "Natural Laws" Has the "Right Stuff"

LOS ANGELES -- The significant role of African-American cowboys in the exploration of the American West sets the scene for the latest video clip from platinum-selling jazz musician Ronnie Laws. Laws' newest album, Natural Laws, was recently released on The Right Stuff label (distributed by CEMA), and features the single and video, "Soon As the Posse Rides Out."

Laws, who grew up in Houston where he learned to ride, filmed the video on location at the Simi Valley, California ranch where "Little House On the Prairie" was taped. Accompanied by L.A.'s South Central Rough Riders, with Bill Pratt directing, Laws starred in the clip, which portrays his return to his hometown as the town's new sheriff -- to the surprise of townspeople he hasn't seen in years.

"Being from Texas, I was very cognizant of black rodeos," says Laws. "American history rarely notes the contributions of black cowboys in the taming of the West. Bill Pickett and the Buffalo Soldiers regiment were very courageous fighters."

Natural Laws, he feels, "has an appeal to a lot of markets and groups. It's truly an eclectic album." Eclectic enough to encompass elements of jazz, R&B, hip-hop, slow jams, and reggae. The album also features the West Coast element of the musical Laws family, including Ronnie's daughter, Michele, on vocals, and his 17-year-old son, Jaman, playing alto sax on a John Coltrane composition, "Central Park West." Also featured is Betty Wright (best known for the R&B hit "Clean-Up Woman"), who sings on "Soon As the Posse Rides Out" and contributes other songs.

Natural Laws is a blend of many musical rhythms, transporting the listener across many borders. Fans familiar with Ronnie's previous works have been delighted to discover the road's the same but the trip is even more interesting this time out. "Soon As the Posse Rides Out" blends jazz, R&B, and reggae. The second single,

"Soul Village," is an upbeat trip back through time, while "Eyes of Love" and "Comin' Back"

are solid contenders for slow jams of the year.

Laws will be on tour

throughout the summer and fall of 1996.
